

Summer Occupational Therapy Immersion Program

The Summer Occupational Therapy Immersion (SOTI) program at the University of Southern California is a two-week course specially designed for international occupational therapy (OT) students and practitioners who are interested in learning more about OT practice and education in the United States. The SOTI program aims to:

- Familiarize students with occupational therapy practice in the United States through lectures and virtual tours of pediatric, adult physical rehabilitation, and mental health practice settings;
- Introduce students to occupational science and to USC's cutting-edge research programs;
- Facilitate the development of a more global perspective of OT, health, and wellness;
- Provide opportunities to network with USC's expert faculty members and with fellow international therapists.

Due to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, the 2021 SOTI program will be offered as an online experience at a reduced cost. Please visit our website chan.usc.edu/soti for details.

July 1 – July 15, 2021
Online Experience

Apply by April 15, 2021

by emailing Daniel Park at parkdani@chan.usc.edu
Early applications encouraged as admission offers are continuous.

USC University of Southern California