

The Occupational Therapy Program, in conjunction with USC Housing, has developed the Occupational Therapy House where OT students can enjoy living together and sharing their experiences.

Residents of the OT House participate in frequent philanthropy events and are joined by a faculty advisor who lives in the building, as well as a resident advisor who is also an OT student. Additional information regarding life in the OT House can be found at <https://chan.usc.edu/students/usc-essentials/housing>.

Residents for the program will be selected on a first-come, first-served basis. Housing is offered on a space available basis, and we cannot guarantee that all applicants will receive an assignment.
